Dianne was the oldest of six siblings. She was raised in Colebrook, New Hampshire and graduated high school from Our Lady of Grace Academy. Then she joined the Daughters of the Charity of the Sacred Heart of Jesus and spent the next eight years as a Catholic nun and kindergarten teacher at Saint Mary's Academy in Champlain, New York.

After leaving her religious order, she attended Trinity College in Burlington, Vermont and graduated with a Liberal Arts Degree with a major in English in 1976.

A year later she began working in the programming department of Vermont Educational Television (now Vermont Public Television) at Fort Ethan Allen in Colchester. It was there that she met her future husband, Lance Micklus. They married on February 28, 1981.

After a few years with the television station, Dianne transferred to the University of Vermont School of Business as a student records specialist. All totaled, she worked for the University for 35 years.

Meantime, both Lance and Dianne, as a couple, began doing a weekly Christian Bible Study at the South Burlington Correctional Facility on Farrell Street. This ministry continued for more than thirty years.

Both Lance and Dianne retired in 2012. They used their newly found free time to travel, ride motorcycles, and kayak.
